DAILY GAZETTE.

Room the Madison Journal. Wool Growing in Rock County vs. Dane County.

Mesers, Editors State Journal: I noticed in your daily issue of August 24th, a letter from a Dans county farmer, answering a challenge from Mr. Stockton, of Rock county, to Dane county, to shear as large a fleece of wool as his, which weighed 11 pounds, 14 oz. I think the fleece is a very respectable one, but it seems, that he is beat by Dane county. Your cor-respondent reports 3 yearing bucks, the fleeces of which were as follows: 1st 12 lbc 6 oz., 2d. 12 lbs., 3d. 15 lbs. He does not state whether the flences were washed or unwashed, nor the age of the fleeces; but I take it for granted that they were unwashed and were early lambs. However, the fleeces are creditable to the locality where they are raised and should encourage other localities to engage in the improvement of our breeds of sheep. Now, Mr. Editors, as your correspondent wished to hear from Rock county again, I will take the liberty to report mentioned already enough to convince your correspondent that Old Rock stands at the head yet, if not, let us hear again.

Yours respectfully, H. HEMMENWAY. Lima, Aug. 27, 1860.

CUTTING CORN STALKS .- Eds. Country Gent.-I send you for publication, if you please, some recollections of an accidental experiment in topping corn. The result is different, I think, from other and better experiments of the same kind.

In 1856 I had a piece of corn containing one and a half acres-soil and culture all. alike. " After the first of September, I comincreed cutting from one to three rows daily: until the piece was two thirds cut; the remaining third-ripened with the tops on .-At harvest, I commenced harvesting at the side that I did to cut stalks; four rows made a load; each load was husked and neasured separately. There was an increase in quantity of corn every load as far as the stalks had been cut. The first four rows yielded at the rate of eighty bushel baskets of ears per nere; the first half sere at the rate of one hundred and two baskets per acre; the remaining acre one hundred and nineteen baskets. The stalks had become so dry that the cattle would not eat them readily, when I stopped untting. There was plenty of ripening weather that fall and no high winds. EDWARD WILLIS, - Country Gentleman. Kingston, Mass.

Women in France.-Chivalry originated first in the south of France, with all its complicated code of sentiments and customs, and left an indelible trace, not merely on the manners, but on the whole imagination of France, It is the feeling which lay as the root of French chivalry that still influences the position of women in France. They are highly esteemed in England, they deserve it; they have made their own position. But in France their society, independently of their merit, is indispensable. Few men past thirty years old will go habitually to a house except for the mistress of it. * * * The French feeling is fot gallantry in the usual acceptance of the word; it is not the young and handsome only that are centers of society. The taste for women's society and sympathy is universal, and beauties an exception. In Eng. land a woman's beauty and her virtues are what every man thinks of as the charm of his house. He talks with rapture of the woman who will nurse him and pour out his tea. In France you do not hear much about a woman's coffee. "Est elle aimable "- (aimable does not mean a virtue but an agreement)-" a t elle de l'esprit?" is the | England states, also second question, if not the first that every man asks. It does not mean; anything wonderful; it means - Hop the the quick percention that seizes, what is said and rotunns change for your thoughts? Sociabiliix, the love of conversation, is an absolute necessity. We know men who would rather live in extreme poverty in Paris than go away for a comfortable income; not from any love of its localities, but they are afraid tion they find in every saloon. Why does a man prefer his club to the drawing room where his lady presides? And why do men in Germany never go to one but by special invitation, with a supper- to make it bearable? They are as fond of their home as the French, but they have less need of companionship in their wives. But, whatever arst class, full powered, Clyde bulk steamers, in contact the effect is certain; and in consequence of this preference for their society, the middle aged and the old ladies have the same relative value, according to their intellectual merit, that men have.-We never heard anyhody in France call a man an old woman because he was a fool of a particular twaddling, kind. Old women are thought quite as copable of wisdom as old men, and, in fact, they have more influence. We do not say that women are duly appreciated in England. We have often been struck with the patronizing and also kindly manner with which a gentleman will go up to a lady, and endeaver or to draw her out. But he does it from good feeling, and not all for his own satisfaction, so that she ought to be more obliged.

From the Madison Journal. Wool Growing in Rock County vs. Dane County.

lesses. Editors State Journal! I noticed in your daily issue of August 24th, a letter from a Dane county, farmer, answering a challenge from Mr. Stockton, of Rock county, to Dane county, to shear as large a fleece of wool as his, which weighed 11 pounds, 14 oz. I think the fleece is a very respectable one, but it seems that he is beat by Dane county. Your correspondent reports 3 yearling bucks, the fleenes of which were as follows: 1st 12 ths 6 oz., 2d. 12 lbs., 3d. 15 lbs. He does not state whether the fleeces were washed or un-washed, nor the age of the fleeces; but I take it for granted that they were unwashed and were early lambs. However, the fleeces are creditable to the locality where they are raised and should encourage other localities to engage in the improvement of our breeds of sheep. Now, Mr. Editors, as your cor-respondent wished to hear from Rock county again, I will take the liberty to report several fleeces of our own raising in town of Lima, in the north part of the county, and as he stated "that the proof is at hand if wanted," I will state the same as regards my report. The fleeces were un-

CUTTING CORN STALES Eds. Country Gent .- I send you for publication, if you lease, some recollections of an accidental experiment in topping corn. The result is lifferent, I think, from other and better experiments of the same kind. In 1856 I had a piece of corn containing one and a half acres—soil and culture all alike. After the first of September, I commonced cutting from one to three rows daily, until the piece was two-thirds cut; the remaining third ripened with the tops on. At harvest, I commenced harvesting at the side that I did to cut stalks; four rows made a load; each load was husked and measured separately. There was an increase in quantity of corn every load as fair as the stalks had been cut. The first four rows yielded at the rate of eighty bushel baskets of ears per acre; the first half acre at the rate of one hundred and two baskets per acre; the remaining acre one hundred and nineteen baskets. The stalks had become so dry that the cattle would not eat them readily, when I stopped catting. There was plenty of ripening weather that fall and no high winds.

DUWARD WILLIS,

- Country Gentleman. Kingston, Mass. WOMEN IN FRANCE.—Chivalry originated irst in the south of France, with all its complicated code of sentiments and customs, and left an indelible trace, not merenation of France. It is the feeling which lay as the root of French chivalry that still influences the position of women in France.
They are highly esteemed in England, they ney have made their own nosi tion. But in France their society, independently of their merit, is indispensable Few men past thirty years old willigo has tr bitually to a house except for the mistress * The French feeling is and gallantry in the usual acceptance of the word; it is not the young and handsome only that are centers of society.) The taste for women's society and sympathy is uni-versal, and beauties an exception. In England a woman's beauty and her virtues are what every man thinks of as the charm of this house. He talks with rapture of the woman who will nurse him and pour out his tea. In France you do not hear much about a woman's coffee. "Est elle aimable does not mean a virtue but an agreement)-" a t elle de l'esprit?" is the second question, if not the first that every man asks. It does not mean anything wonderful; it means—Hap she the quick perception that seizes, what is said and returns change for your thoughts? Sociability the first of the second control of t ly, the love of conversation, is an absolute necessity. We know men who would rather live in extreme poverty in Paris than go away for a comfortable income; not from anylore a comfortable integne; not from anylore of its localities, but, they are afraid of being conneied for want of the conversation, they find in every salom; Why does a man prefer his club to the drawing room where his lady presides 2. And why do men in Germany never go to one but, by special invitation, with a support to rook it. in tiermany never go to one but by special invitation, with a supper to make it bearable? They are as fond of their home as the French, but they have less need of companionship in their wives. But whatever, is the cause, the effect is certain; and in consequence of this preference for their society, the middle nged and the old ladies have the same relative value according to have the same relative value, according to their intellectual merit, that men have.— We never heard anybody in France, call a man an old woman because he was a fool of a particular twaddling, kind. Old wemen are thought quite as capuble of wis-dom as old men, and, in fact, they have more influence. We do not say that women are duly appreciated in England. We have often been struck with the patronizng and also kindly manner with which a ntleman will go up to a lady, and endeavor to draw her out. But, he does it from good feeling, and not all for his own satisaction, so that she ought to bomore obliged.

A Intrie Scene. -Yesterday a sight seldom witnessed was presented to the patrons of one of the city railroads. In one of the of one of the city railronds. In one of the cars there were three pair of twins, each representing a nationality. First, an Ameri, can nother with two fine boys. Second, a Scotch mother with a boy and a girl; these had rather a meagre look, but the inother said they were healthy. Third were two boys of Isish parents; they were fair sam; ples of the children belonging to that class. While the attention of the missengers were. ples of the children belonging to that class. While the attention of the passengers were taken up with surveying these little ones two ladies entered the car, they were twins also. The ladies were about twenty-three years of age, while ladies were about twenty-three years of age, while ladies while babies was respectively four, seven and nine months.—

CAPITAL AND SUBBLES,

They invite investigation into their condition and selicit insinces entirely upon their condition and selicit insinces entirely upon their real merits. In point of solvency and reliability and innovable dealing, they have but the equals, and no superiors. They are founded upon the very best securities in the world—first class bends and mortgages upon property in New York and Brocktyn—securities that have not, for the past ten years, depreciated below par, and are every way more reliable and permanent than railroad, bank, and other stocks, which are subject to the fluctuations of the market, and liable, in times of panic, as the experience of the past tendes, to become almost, if not entirely, valueless. And while there are Companies entering the field of competition, well calendated to misi-aid by publishing partial and one-sided statements of their condition, and without a cash surplus on hand sufficient to retinsure their outstanding risks, the above named companies always have and keep over and above their capital time the amount, and in most instances four times, needed for the reinstrance of all their risks. With such a foundation, and with such nost instances four times, needed for the reinsurance of Al their risks. With such a foundation, and with such all their risks. With such a foundation, and with such a condition, they takim the right to look with confidence to the public for liberal partongs.

Policies issued without delay, and farms risks for a series of years taken at less rates than can be done by Mutual Companies, and a cortainty given instead of an uncertainty. All losses promptly adjusted and paid.

From the Madison Journal. Wool Growing in Rock County vs.

Mesers. Editors State Journal: I noticed in your daily issue of August 24th, a letter from a Dane county farmer, answering a challenge from Mr. Stockton, of Rock county, to Dane county, to shear as large a fleece of wool as his, which weighed 11 pounds, 14 oz. I think the flecce is a very respectable one, but it seems that he is bent by Dane county. Your correspondent reports 3 yearling backs, the fleeces of which were as follows: 1st 12 lbs 6 oz., 2d. 12 fbs., 3d. 15 fbs. He does not state whether the fleeces were washed or unwashed, nor the age of the fleeces; but I take it for granted that they were unwashed and were early lambs. However, the fleeces the fleeces washed and were early lambs. However, the fleeces the fleeces washed and way, accommodation. and were early lambs. However, the ficeces are creditable to the locality where they are raised and should encourage other localities to engage in the improvement of our breeds of sheep. Now, Mr. Editors, as your correspondent wished to hear from Rock county again, I will take the liberty to report several fleeces of our own raising in the town of Lima, in the north part of the county, and as he stated "that the proof is at hand if wanted," I will state the same as regards my report. The fleeces were unwashed but were done up in good order and look very nice indeed.

Mr. Asoph Pratt, on the 5th of June clipt from two bucks one year old last April, 35 fbs., 4 az., one turning off 19 fbs., 12 az., the other 15 fbs., 8 az. of two years' growth Mr. A. S. Edgerton from one buck one year old, 14 lbs. 0 oz., also from two year old, 16 fb.s. 8 oz. B. B. Freeman from one buck 3 years old, 19 fbs. 8 oz., one year's growth. J. F. Goodhue from one buck 3 years old, 17 lbs. S. L. Farmington from one buck 2 years old 16 fbs. 12 oz. Messrs, Editors, I could mention a number more heavy shearing sheep in our county, but perhaps I have mentioned already enough to convince your correspondent that Old Rock stands at the head yet, if not, let us hear again.

Yours respectfully, II. HEMMENWAY. Lima, Aug. 27, 1360.

CUTTING CORN STALKS .-- Eds. Country Gent .- I send you for publication, if you please, some recollections of an accidental experiment in topping corn. The result is different, I think, from other and better experiments of the same kind.

In 1856 I had a piece of corn containing one and a half acres—soil and culture all alike. After the first of September, I commenced cutting from one to three rows daily until the piece was two-thirds ent; the remaining third ripened with the tops on .-At harvest, I commenced harvesting at the side that I did to ent stalks; four rows made a load; each load was husked and made a load; each foad was missed and measured separately. There was an increase in quantity of core every load as far as the stalks had been cut. The first four rows [PRAINS] leave the Great Central Depot, ton Lake st., of ears per acre; the first half acre at the rate of one hundred and two baskets per acre; the remaining acre one hundred and nineteen baskets. The stalks had become so dry that the cattle would not eat them readily, when I stopped cutting. There was plenty of ripening weather that fall and no high winds. EDWARD WILLIS, - Country Gentleman. Kingston, Mass.

Women in France.—Chivalry originated first in the south of France, with all its complicated code of sentiments and customs, and left an indelible trace, not merely on the manners, but on the whole imagination of France. It is the feeling which lay as the root of French chivalry that still influences the position of women in France. They are highly esteemed in England, they deserve it; they have made their own position. But in France their society, independently of their merit, is indispensable. Few men past thirty years old will go habitually to a house except for the mistress of it. * * The French feeling is not gallantry in the usual acceptance of the word; it is not the roung and handsome only that are centers of society. The taste for women's society and sympathy is universal, and beauties an exception. In England a woman's beauty and her virtues are what every man thinks of as the charm of his house. He talks with rapture of the woman who will nurse him and pour ont his tea. In France you do not hear much about a woman's coffee. "Est elle aimable "-(aimable does not mean a virtue but an agreement)-"a velle de l'esprit?" is the second question, if not the first that every man asks. It does not mean anything wonderful; it means—Alos she the quick perception that soizes what is said and returns change for your thoughts? Sociability, the love of conversation, is an absolute necessity. We know men who would rather hive in extreme poverty in Payis than go

Waters Shanley. man asks. It does not mean anything away for a comfortable income; not from any love of its localities, but they are afraid of being ennuied for want of the conversation they find in every saloon. Why does a man prefer his club to the drawing room where his lady presides? And why do men in Germany never go to one but by special invitation, with a supper to make it hearable? They are as fond of their home as the French, but they have less need of companionship in their wives. But whatever is the cause, the effect is certain; and in consequence of this preference for their society, the middle aged and the old ladies have the same relative value, according to their intellectual merit, that men have .-We never heard anybody in France call a man an old woman because he was a fool of a particular twaddling kind, Old women are thought quite as capable of wisdom as old men, and, in fact, they have more influence. We do not say that women are duly appreciated in England. We have often been struck with the patroniz-ing and also kindly manner with which a gentleman will go up to a lady, and endeavor to draw her out. But he does it from good feeling, and not all for his own satisfaction, so that she ought to be more obliged. A LITTLE SCENE,-Yesterday a sight seldom witnessed was presented to the patrons of one of the city railroads. In one of the cars there were three pair of twins, each representing a nationality. First, an American mother with two fine boys. Second, a Scotch mother with a boy and a girl; these had rather a meagre look, but the mother said they were healthy. Third were two boys of Isish parents; they were fair samples of the children belonging to that class. While the attention of the passengers were taken up with surveying these little ones, two ladies entered the car, they were twins also. The ladies were about twenty-three years of age, while that of the habies was respectively four, seven and nine months.— TALLMAN & COLLINS. | New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Missouri Compromise and its origin in the hearts of all patriotic men who desired to preserve and perpetuate the blessings of our glorious. Union—on origin aking that of the constitution of the United States, conceived in the same spirit of fraternal affection, and calculated to remove forever the only danger which threatons at some distant day, to sever the social bond of Union—All the evidences of public opinion at that day seem to indicate that this compromise had become comonized in the hearts of the American people as a sacred Using, which no rudhless hand would ever be reckless enough to disturb."

How Non-Intervention Works.

"I believe that it is the right of the south to demand and the duty of congress to extend, protection of persons and property of every kind (including stores) in the ter-ritories during their territorial state."—Herschel V. Johnson.

From Douglas' Speech in the Senate, May 16,1860.

"It is part of the history of the country that under this doctrine of non-intervention, this doctrine that you delight to call squatter soversignty, the people of New Mexico have introduced and protected slavery in the whole of that territory. Under this doctrine they have converted a treat of free territory into slave territory, more than five times the size of the state of New Pork—Onder this doctrine slavery has been extended from the Rio Grande to the Gulf of California, and from the line of the republic of Mexico, not only up to 30 deg. 30 min_but up to 58 deg—giving you a degree and a half more slave territory than you ever claimed."

-In regard to the contemplated fusion of all the anti-republican elements in Massachusetts, the Boston Journal has the follow

"It is now well understood that an attempt will be made in the Douglas democratic and Bell-Everett conventions, which assemble at Springfield and Worcester respectively on the 12th of September, to unite both parties upon a half and half electral ticket, as well as upon state nominations-the Bell Everetts having the head of the latter in the person of Marshall P. Wilder, while the democrats are to take all the rest. The Breckinridge convention will meet in Boston on the same day, but no proposition for a combination which shall include that body is to be made to it then. The two principal contracting parties are to form a copartnership first, and afterward to which the followers of the Baltimore candidate for the presidency do not put forward prominently Douglas talks about non-inervention and popular sovereignty in the erritories, but he fails to tell his hearers that the convention which nominated him adopted a resoulution which puts it out of the power of the people to decide for themselves in the territories, whether they will have slavery or not. That resolution is as follows, and was adopted by the Douglas democratic convention at Bultimore:

Resolved, That it is in accordance with the Cincinnati platform that during the existence of the territorial governments, the measure of restriction, whatever it may be, imposed by the federal constitution on the ower of the territorial legislature, over the same has been, or shall hereufter be finally letermined by the supreme court of the United States, should be respected by all good citizens, and enforced with prompt-

Douglas says in his recent speeches that the question of slavory is to be left to the es, viz: higher arithmetic, grammar, rhetor-people of the territories, and that there is ic, physical geography, high school geography, elementary algebra, elecution, English is said to be the Douglas doctrine. This resolution says that whatever the supreme court has decided, and whatever its decision may be in the future, is the democratic doctrine on this subject at this election.

It says, moreover, that whatever the court decides, must be enforced with promptness by every branch of the general government.

The democratic party has, therefore, no platform of its own on the subject of slavery, but is content to take the decision of nine men, or a majority of them, and solemnly affirms before hand that it will be

What that decision is now we know; but what it may be, in all time to come, we have no means of knowing, yet the Douglas party are willing to take it on trust, and

If these men have any conscience, in political matters, they surrender it, by the erms of the above resolution, to the supreme court. They erect what they deem an infallible tribunal, which is to tell them from time to time what to believe in relation to slavery in the territories. It is a sort of Pope, which is to expound political doctrines for them, and which is declared to be incapable of committing an error.

For proof of this look at the resolution. By its words, we are not only to obey the decisions, but it is declared that these utterances of the court, however anti-democratic and destructive to liberty they may be, "should be respected by all good citizens." We are to infer from this that the democracy believe that the court can never err, and that all its decisions will be such as to command the approbation of all "good" men. Such is the monstrous proposition which the Douglas democracy uphold. We can well see how men may honestly and properly submit to a wrong decision for a I. V. Fowler, time till they can get it reversed, but the last spark of political independence must have left those who agree before hand to respect all decisions and adopt them as a political creed.

If the court should follow its Dred Scott 'opinion" and decide that the doctrine of popular sovereignty is a heresy, the Dougpopular sovereignty is a heresy, the Dong Wales.—He is the oldest son of Victoria, las men must applaud and respect that devision, and are pledged to promptness in who was the son of Goorge the Third; who enforcing it by every branch of the general was the grandson of George the Second, who was the son of Princess Sophia, who was the son of Princess Sophia, who was the cousin of Anne, who was the sister would be bound to pass a law intervening would be bound to pass a law intervening of William and Mary; Mary was the daughgive up advocating it forever. This they

Many believe that this decision has already been made. The court, it is said by some, decided only that Dred Scott was not a citizen. But Douglas has taken the Second, who was the son of Matilda, broader ground than this, and has gone far the daughter of Henry the First, who was enough to destroy his great principle. He thoratative expression of the constitution, and on that point I concur.

Here he only says they may take their property there, but does not say whether it may be protected, or driven out by "unfriendly legislation." But in February, 1858, in his place in the senate, he defines his position explicitely on that point. He

"I do not put slavery on a different footing from other property. I recognize it as property, under what is understood to be the decision of the supreme court. Slavery according to that decision being property, stands on an equal footing with all other property. There is just as much obliga-rion, on the part of the territorial legislature to protect slaves, as every other species of property." [Cong. Notes 2d Session 35th Congress, pages 1256 and 1258.

In this speech Douglas reognizes the whole opinion in the Dred Scott case as a decision; which, taken in connection with the Baltimore platform, fully and unequivocally commits him to congressional inter-advocacy of the principle of non-intervenion, after having said what he did at Memphis and in the senate, and after pledging imself to the Baltimore platform? Does he not stand-pledged against popular sovereignty in the territories? Such must be the conclusion of every unbiased mind.

MARKETS AND CROPS.—We read the folowing in the New York Herald of Monday: Continued advices of unfavorable weather in Europe have stimulated our grain and frod markets to considerable activity, not-withstanding the large supplies which are coming forward from the west. It seems certain that Ireland will need, this fall and next winter; a large quantity of corn. How much we can spare before December—that is to say, before this year's crop can be shipped—is a problem which is exercising the minds of dealers. An unusually large ex-port of beef and pork may also be expected; prices are already high enough to give the grower a very large profit. In the west the movement of grain is unprecedented. Every vessel on the lakes is employed in carrying wheat, flour and grain from Chicago eastward, and the rush of produce so far exceeds the lake tonnage that the roads running east and west are carrying almost as much as they can at their own prices. Food is also descending the Mississippi in large quantities. There is, unfortunately, no room for doubt in regard to the failure of the corn crop in large sections of the Gulf-states; the more prudent planters are al-ready in the market purchasing food for their field hands next winter. The Mississippi trade this winter will be very active. NORTH CAROLINA. - The full official vote

Ellis is for Breckinridge, as are nearly all the noted democrats in the state, and we presume of the masses also. The demoratic electoral ticket is unanimous for Breckinridge. There is a call out for a Douglas convention to nominate a rival ticket, which, if persisted in, will give Bell a chance for the state. The strong probability is, however, that it will go for Breck.

Hon. S. E. Church addressed the audience on behalf of the Douglas wing, and S. J. Crooks, Esq., of Rochester rang the Bell. The former speaker steered clear of all subjects calculated to excite unpleasant

for an afterpiece, and he spoke two hours and ten minutes. He announced himself as a Bell man, "I follow the big bell where-ever it goes." He proclaimed his love for ever it goes." He proclaimed his love for "my Irish brother," but still insisted he should be here twenty one years before being allowed to vote. He attempted a laudation of Henry Clay, but got him so badly mixed up with Pennsylvania iron ore, that the whole crowd laughed at him. As often as once in ten minutes he announced his text:
"I want Bell—Bell alone, and if I can't get Bell, I am willing to take Douglas." And he said, "there will be no election by the people, but the election will go to the house, and then Bell or Everett will be the president." Gov. Church stalked off with a long face; the leading democrats were swearing mad; the crowd more than half dispersed; the wagons from abroad drove off, and still Crooks kept ringing his Bell. The republicans were in great glee, and we wish they would get Crooks here every week of the campaign. But he need not be alarmed—he will not get another invitation. The democrats have "seen Sam," no mis-

REVOLUTIONARY REMINISCENCES.-Messrs Editors: The editorial article in yesterday's Ledger, with the above caption, reminds me of a little incident that occurred in my family some time ago. Mrs. Wentworth, a venerable old lady of Revolutionary times, while making a temporary stay at our house, related during the evening, the following incident, among many others: "Our residence, at this time," she continued, " was not far from that of the Washington family; one afternoon my mother sent me on a little domestic errand to Mrs. Washington's, with whom she was intimate, and I had just delivered my message, when the Father of his Country entered. As I was about to retire he approached me-I was twelve years old and, placing his hand on my head, in then—and, placing his hand on my head, in a kind, fatherly manner, asked me, with a gentle smile, 'whose little girl I was,' and when I told hin, he stooped, (God bless him, I think I see him yet,') continued the old lady, interrupting herself, and wiping a tear from her eye, "and he had to stoop a tear from her eye, "and he had to stoop a great deal, too, for he was so very tall and so majestic, and imprinted a warm kiss

"What is it, my dear?"

"Let me kiss the cheek that Washington kissed?" "Certainly, my child!" and she leaned

I must say, I felt my eyes moisten, for the whole scene appeared so simple and touching. And when I told it to a friend, a few days afterwards, he said he thought my wife must be a very patriotic little wo-men. I smiled, and told him I believed all American women were patriotic.

The Columbus Fact says it always regarded Judge Douglas as a political trickster, but finds fresh evidence of the fact in a speech of Hon. S. S. Cox, in that county, a few days ago. It says of Cox:
"He said he had been blamed by some

for his vote on the 'English bill,' but he stated distinctly that he had consulted with Judge Douglas, and that he advised and approved of the vote. Judge Douglas himself, when the bill came to the senate, voted and it is a state of the senate. against it, although it was in exactly the in favor of slavery in the territories. Hence ter, and William the son-in-law of James shape in which he advised his friend Cox.

Douglas men become interventionists by the Second, who was the son of Charles the to support it. Here is testimony against Douglas men become interventionists by the dictum of nine mortal men. Their vital principle of popular sovereignty, as unchangeable they say, as the right of self-government itself, is blown away by the government itself, is blown away by the breath of a court, and they are bound to give up advocating it forever. This they who was the son of Henry the Fourth, who was the cousin of Richard the Second, who was the grand-son of Edward the Third, who was the son of Edward the Third, who was the son of Edward the Second, who was the son of Edward the Second, who who was the son of Henry the Third, who was the son of John, who was the son of Henry the Son of Henry the Son of Henry the Son of Henry the Son of Matilda, ceitful? Mr. Cox states it upon the stump in every township in which he speaks, and while a few of Judge Douglas' friends deny it, what does their denial amount to in op position to Mr. Cox, who knows exactly the conversation which took place between him and Judge Douglas? Cox claims no merit for this vote, except obedience to the request of Judge Douglas."

HOW MR. DOUGLAS DOES'NT MAKE PO-LITIGAL SPEECHES.—"I feel that I have done injustice to you as well as to myself. (Cries of 'go on, go on.') No, I am not going on. I have done more talking to day than I expected to do all summer. pected that I was going to pass quietly through your state; but at every railroad station my friends have literally overwhelmed me with kindness, and it was not in my heart to refuse to speak to them. I made no political speeches, because I was wel-comed by men of all political parties, and it was never in my heart to say an unkind thing to those who were kind to me. To day I have only touched upon these political topics because your chairman, who in-troduced me, invited my special attention to them. I don't intend, as a general thing, to enter into the political discussions of this year. It is the first time in twenty seven years that I have looked on upon a politiand fight without taking a hand in it. plause.) NEGRO BURNING.-The Augusta (Ga. Despatch, of the 11th inst., has the follow

We learn this morning that a negro boy who had killed a white man, was burned at a stake at the above named place. Twelve persons took him from the custody of the sheriff, giving honds for his re-delivery, af-ter which they tried, sentenced and executed the murderer, returning his ashes to the officer.

TROUBLE ON THE LA CROSSE ROAD. We are informed that there is a dispute between some of the people of Portage and the La Crosse road in regard to the title of some land through which the road runs at that place. For several days past, officers have been at the depot at Portage, and arrested the conductors and engineers, who were obliged to give ball before being allowed to proceed with the trains. The trains are now running through Portage without stopping. - Milwaukee News.

THE DROUGHT IN MEXICO.-A corres pondent of the N. O. Picayane, writing from Tampico under date of August 8th, SCYB:

The conducts arrived from the interior some few days ago, bringing $2,047,150. The drought is reported as very severe; and this, together with the marauding bands which infest the interior, will soon bring the country to utter ruin. Great fears of famine are entertained in the interior, as there is not a single bushel of corn or wheat in the granary which formerly supplied the wants of the people. This state of things is, no doubt the consequence of the internal struggle which has lasted since Commo-fort left the country. The population is either coeffed into the ranks or compelled to flee from their oppressors into the inountains, leaving in the meantime the crops, if any, to go to utter waste. The men who brought downsthe conducts suffered severely from the scarcity of water, and thirty four wretches were left on the road to perish. Corn is excessively high, so much so that

ABD EL KADER, when in Paris, expressed his admiration of the pious devotedness of the Sisters of Charity. "Let the day ever come," he said," when those servants of Christ and humanity shall be exposed to any danger; Twill protect and defend them even at the itimost personal risk." Not long ago he fillfilled this vow by rescuing, at great peril, a number of sisters of charity whose lives were endangered during the massacres in Syria.

Douglas vs. Douglas and the Missouri Compromise.

From Douglas' Speech in Springfield, Ill., 1850. From Douglas' Speech in Springfield, Ill., 1850.

The Missouri Compromise had its origin in the hearts of all patriotic men who desired to preserve and perpetute the blessings of our glorious Union—on origin akin to that of the constitution of the United States, conceived in the same spirit of fraternal affection, and calculated to the temove forever the only daviger which theretens not some distant day, to sever the social bond of Union.—All the evidences of public opinion at that day seem to indicate that this compromise had become canonical indicate that this compromise had become canonical in the insures of the American people as a sacred thing, the insures of the American people as a sacred thing, which no rathless hand would ever be reckless enough to distant.

How Non-Intervention Works.

"I believe that it is the right of the south to demand and the duty of congress to extend, protection of persons and property of every kind (including slaves) in the ter-ritories during their territorial state?—Herschel V. Johnson.

From Douglas' Speech in the Senate, May 16,1860. From Douglas' Speech in the Senate, May 16,1880.

"It is part of the history of the country that under this doctrine of non-intervention, this doctrine that you delight to call squatter sovereignty, the people of New Mexico have introduced and protected slavery in the whole of that territory. Under this doctrine they have converted a tract of free territory into state territory, more than five times the size of the state of New York.— Under this doctrine slavery has been extended, from the Rio Grands to the Gulf of Catifornia, and from the line of the republic of Mexico, not only up to 36 deg. 30 min., but up to 88 deg.—giving you a degree and a half more slave territory than you ever claimed."

LARGE YIELD OF ONIONS .- The Davenport Democrat has the following:

A farmer who lives a short distance north of the city, has harvested from four acres of land, the magnificent lot of sixteen hundred bushels of enions! Think of that, are pledged to do by their platform. and not shed tears, if you can. We have heard of larger yields than this, but they are uncommon. Four hundred bushels to to the acre, gives $140 to the acre. The net profit is more than double the assessed or the market value of land. Just think of it, you down-easters.

This item brings to mind a large yield in Wisconsin. In Green county, recently, "four acres" were harvested and yielded twenty thousand Douglas men! Think of Taney's decision, that slaves are decided that, and not shed tears, if you can! The crop was of the same stock, and five thousand Douglas men to the acre is quite an un-

PLENTY OF CANDIDATES .- One of the four papers in Rockford has nearly a column of notices from different persons announceing themselves as candidates for various county offices. For sheriff, there are in this list 8 candidates, 5 for clerk and recorder, 2 for prosecuting attorney, I for representative in the legislature, and I for coroner. How many the other papers contain, we have not noticed.

OH, YES!-The Milwaukee News says the election of Reymert, the democratic candidate for congress in this district, "is not without the pale of probabilty!"

The News is certainly outside the "pale" of discretion or even effective lieing; it has long since left the restraints of the Manchausen school of philosophers for a wider range of thought and expression.

THE NEW COALITION IN MASSACHUSETTS. -In regard to the contemplated fusion of all the anti-republican elements in Massachusetts, the Boston Journal has the follow-

Douglas talks about non-in- from the Wisconsin: tervention and popular sovereignty in the territories, but he fails to tell his hearers that the convention which nominated him adopted a resoulution which puts it out of the power of the people to decide for themselves in the territories, whether they will have slavery or not. That resolution is as follows, and was adopted by the Douglas democratic convention at Baltimore:

Resolved, That it is in accordance with the Cincinnati platform that during the eximposed by the federal constitution on the power of the territorial legislature, over the extra. subject of their domestic relations, as the same has been, or shall hereafter be finally determined by the supreme court of the United States, should be respected by all good citizens, and enforced with promptness and fidelity, by every branch of the

Douglas says in his recent speeches that the question of slavery is to be left to the people of the territories, and that there is to be non-intervention by congress. This resolution says that whatever the supreme court has decided, and whatever its decision may be in the future, is the democratic

The democratic party has, therefore, no platform of its own on the subject of slaery, but is content to take the decision of ine men, or a majority of them, and solemnly affirms before hand that it will be ers. eight, "whatever it may be."

What that decision is now we know; but what it may be, in all time to come, we have no means of knowing, yet the Douglas party are willing to take it on trust, and

If these men have any conscience, in political matters, they surrender it, by the terms of the above resolution, to the supreme court. > owing in the New York Herald of Monday: Continued advices of unfavorable weather in Europe have stimulated our grain and food markets to considerable activity, notwithstanding the large supplies which are coming forward from the west. It seems certain that Ireland will need, this fall and next winter, a large quantity of corn. How much we can spare before December-that is to say, before this year's crop can be shipped—is a problem which is exercising the minds of dealers. An unusually large export of beef and pork may also be expected; prices are already high enough to give the grower a very large profit. In the west the movement of grain is unprecedented. Evcry vessel on the lakes is employed in carrying wheat, flour and grain from Chicago much as they can at their own prices. Food is also descending the Mississippi in large quantities. There is, unfortunately, no room for doubt in regard to the failure of the corn crop in large sections of the Gulf states; the more prudent planters are already in the market purchasing food for their field hands next winter. The Mississippi trade this winter will be very active. NORTH CAROLINA .- The full official vote

REVOLUTIONARY REMINISCENCES.-Messrs. Editors: The editorial article in yesterday's Ledger, with the above caption, reminds me of a little incident that occurred in my family some time ago. Mrs. Wentworth, a venerable old lady of Revolutionary times, while making a temporary stay at our house, related during the evening, the following incident, among many others: "Our residence, at this time," she continued, "was not far from that of the Washington family; one afternoon my mother sent me on a little domestic errand to Mrs. Washington's, with whom she was intimate, and I had just delivered my message, when the Father of his then-and, placing his hand on my head, in a kind, fatherly manner, asked me, with a gentle smile, 'whose little girl I was,' and when I told hin, he stooped, (God biess him, I think I see him yet,") continued the old lady, interrupting herself, and wiping a tear from her eye, " and he had to stoop a great deal, too, for he was so very tall and so majestic, and imprinted a warm kiss on my right cheek, and gave me his blessing—Twas right here! said she, with a look of pride as she put the end of her middle finger to her cheek, a little below the center. In the course of the mah, hey were led to the residence of Aleinder Graham, esq., where the ladies of lat neighborhood had provided a liberal refihment for them. After partaking of ac bounties of the table, three cheers were ven for Judge Keep, who is now visiting r. Mr. Graham was then called 5 who waited all credit for the handsome ception given the company, and stated ti the entertainment of which they had p taken had been provided by the republic ladies of the neighborhood. JACKSON STREET BRIDGE.—The work of repairing this bridge and the road at the south end of it commenced last Tuesday and is now nearly completed. Mr. Lovejoy, the owner of the land between the bridge and the street intersecting the road leading live, it also demands that they should keep their money from the bridge, we understand is willing to for avestment at home. Confident that our success has give the city the right of way, on condition been more than equal to that of the most "unprecedent of the city accepting it, with the bridge, and the office, southwest corner of Main and Wisconsin keeping them in repair. The bridge itself streets, and examine for themselves. has been built by private subscription, and now that both bridge and road are in good order, it seems only reasonable that the city should accept them on the conditions proposed. As a convenient avenue to and from the city, this street need only be used to demonstrate its importance, and we hope that the city council will promptly accept the trust.

In connection with this, it may be stated that Mr. St. John is about to open the road through his land about which so much controversy has existed. When this is done, Jackson street will become still more valuable as a convenient access to the city.

NARROW ESCAPE.—The passengers in the 1:45 train on the Milwaukee road to Prairie du Chien had a very narrow escape this morning from an appalling accident. The switch near the end of Franklin street bridge had not been replaced by the switchman ter sending off the freight train, and as the passenger train was leaving the city it was thrown off the track. The engine and baggage car entirely crossed the bridge, on the ties, and one passenger car was carried partly across the bridge. The train was stopped before it reached River street bridge, fortunately without any injury to any of the passengers or employees on the train.-This exemption from a most fatal accident is attributable to the fact that the train was running at less than its usual speed through the city. If it had been running as fast as it frequently does, nothing could have prevented a descent down the embankment on this portion of the road, or running on the bridge over the river with scarcely a possibility of crossing it in safety. Some of the ties over which the train passed were broken, others were displaced, and the track itself displaced. The road was fully repaired in a few hours, and the passengers sent on by a locomotive procured from Milton, realizing that a Providential hand had interposed in their behalf.

Last evening about 9 o'clock, as we sat at our window enjoying the moonlight, a cow approached the bars of a neighbor's yard, examined them carefully, and enjoyed the perfume of a small patch of nice corn and cabbages just within the fence.-With a full knowledge of the tempting sweets within that enclosure, she walked barriedly away; a few moments only passed before she returned with two others of kin, and the three displaced two of the upper bars. Very soon the corn was demolished, and the cabbages followed suit. An hour, nearly, clapsed while their were filling their maws; then came the bitter, for the man of the house, with a large club and a hand full of stones made his appearance, and rutblessly disturbed their quiet. They left, plus corn and cabbage, and the man replaced the bars, minus cabbage and corn.

Moral.-Let your cows loose and keep no garden to be destroyed by a neighbor's ani-

How THEY WILL VOTE .- The Albany Statesman, for the last five years the lending American paper in Central New York, says that more than 75,000 Americans in that state, who have never before voted a republican ticket, will vote for Abraham Lincoln in November next.

CAPT. FORBES A FOLLOWER OF GARIBAL DI.—Captain Forbes, who created quite a sensation some months since by pretending to know so much more than he really did of John Brown and his plots, has turned up in Sicily, where he occupies a high mili-tary position under Garibaldi.

The wide-awakes made a brilliant pade last night. In the course of the meh, hey were led to the residence of Alexader Graham, esq., where the ladies of sat neighborhood had provided a liberal refibment for them. After partaking of he hounties of the table, three cheers were a en for Judge Keep, who is now visiting r Graham, to which the Judge briefly respded, thenking the company for the comment bestowed upon him, and pleading e state of his health as the reason for a omission to make such an address as he sired. Mr. Graham was then called o who waived all credit for the handsomeception given the company, and stated ti the entertainment of which they had u taken had been provided by the republic ladies of the neighborhood. Confident that our success has give the city the right of way, on condition been more than equal to that of the most "unprecedentof the city accepting it, with the bridge, and she office, southwest corner of Main and Wisconsin keeping them in repair. The bridge itself streets, and examine for themselves. has been built by private subscription, and now that both bridge and road are in good order, it seems only reasonable that the city should accept them on the conditions proposed. As a convenient avenue to and from the city, this street need only be used to demonstrate its importance, and we hope that the city council will promptly accept the trust.

In connection with this, it may be stated that Mr. St. John is about to open the road through his land about which so much controversy has existed. When this is done, Jackson street will become still more valuable as a convenient access to the city.

NARROW Escape.—The passengers in the 1:45 train on the Milwaukee road to Prairie du Chien had a very narrow escape this morning from an appalling accident. The switch near the end of Franklin street bridge had not been replaced by the switchman of ter sending off the freight train, and as the passenger train was leaving the city it was thrown off the track. The engine and baggage car entirely crossed the bridge, on the ties, and one passenger car was carried partly across the bridge. The train was stopped before it reached River street bridge, fortunately without any injury to any of the passengers or employees on the train.--This exemption from a most fatal accident is attributable to the fact that the train was renaing at less than its usual speed through the city. If it had been running as fast as it frequently does, nothing could have prerepled a descent down the embankment on this portion of the road, or running on the bridge over the river with scarcely a possibility of crossing it in safety. Some of the ties over which the train passed were broken, others were displaced, and the track itself displaced. The road was fully repaired in a few hours, and the passengers sent on by a locomotive procured from Milton, realizing that a Providential hand had interposed in their behalf.

Last evening about 9 o'clock, as we eat at our window enjoying the moonlight, a cow approached the bars of a neighbor's vard, examined them carefully, and enjoyed the perfume of a small patch of nice man of the house, with a large club and a hand full of stones made his appearance. and ruthlessly disturbed their quiet. Wide-Awake Parade. The wide-awakes made a brilliant parade last night. In the course of the march, hey were led to the residence of Alexander Graham, esq., where the ladies of that neighborhood had provided a liberal refreshment for them. After partaking of the bounties of the table, three cheers were given for Judge Keep, who is now visiting Mr. Graham, to which the Judge briefly responded, thanking the company for the compliment bestowed upon him, and pleading the state of his health as the reason for an omission to make such an address as he desired. Mr. Graham was then called out, who waived all credit for the handsome reception given the company, and stated that the entertainment of which they had partaken had been provided by the republican ladies of the neighborhood. John R. Bennett was summoned from the ranks, and after closing his remarks, three hearty cheers S. Dickinson has been invited to be present, were given for the ladies who had so liberally remembered their friends.

As the company left the ground where the table had been spread, it was complimented by three cheers from the ladies present .--Our fair friends will excuse us if we say a little timidity and a want of practice was exhibited in this part of the performance; the intention was better than the execution; but any failure on their part was amply made up by the heartiness with which their effort was reciprocated by the company.

After the return of the company to the drill room, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: Resolvee, That the thanks of the Wide-

Awake Club be tendered to the republican ladies "on the Bluff," for the timely and bountiful refreshments to which they invited as, at the house of Mrs. Graham, during our street parade this evening.

Resolved. That we return our greatful thanks to those gentlemen who kindly volunteered and furnished us with the excellent music to which we marched this even-A. B. McLEAN, Captain. L. B. Hunson, Secretary.

JACKSON STREET BRIDGE.—The work of repairing this bridge and the road at the south end of it commenced last Tuesday and is now nearly completed. Mr. Lovejoy, the owner of the land between the bridge and the street intersecting the road leading from the bridge, we understand is willing to give the city the right of way, on condition of the city accepting it, with the bridge, and keeping them in repair. The bridge itself has been built by private subscription, and now that both bridge and road are in good order, it seems only reasonable that the city should accept them on the conditions proposed. As a convenient avenue to and from the city, this street need only be used to demonstrate its importance, and we hope that the city council will promptly accept

In connection with this, it may be stated that Mr. St. John is about to open the road through his land about which so much controversy has existed. When this is done. Jackson street will become still more valuable as a convenient access to the city.

NARROW ESCAPE .- The passengers in the 1:45 train on the Milwaukee road to Prairie du Chien had a very narrow escape this morning from an appalling accident. The switch near the end of Franklin street bridge had not been replaced by the switchman af ter sending off the freight train, and as the passenger train was leaving the city it was thrown off the track. The engine and baggage car entirely crossed the bridge, on the ties, and one passenger car was carried partly across the bridge. The train was stopped before it reached River street bridge. fortunately without any injury to any of the passengers or employees on the train .--This exemption from a most fatal accident is attributable to the fact that the train was running at less than its usual speed through the city. If it had been running as fast as it frequently does, nothing could have prevented a descent down the embankment on this portion of the road, or running on the bridge over the river with scarcely a possiidlity of crossing it in safety. Some of the ties over which the train passed were broken, others were displaced, and the track itself displaced. The road was fully repaired in a few hours, and the passengers sent on by a locomotive procured from Milton, realizing that a Providential hand had intermised in their behalf.

Last evening about 9 o'clock, as we sat at our window enjoying the moonlight, a cow approached the bars of a neighbor's yard, examined them carefully, and enjoyed the perfame of a small patch of nice corn and cabbages just within the fence .-With a full knowledge of the tempting sweets within that enclosure, she walked harriedly away: a few moments only passed before she returned with two others of kin, and the three displaced two of the upper bars. Very soon the corn was demolished, and the cabbages followed suit. An hour, nearly, clapsed while their were filling their maws; then came the bitter, for the man of the house, with a large club and a hand full of stones made his appearance, and ruthlessly disturbed their quiet. They left, plus corn and cabbage, and the man replaced the bars, minus cabbage and corn. Moral.--Let your cows loose and keep no garden to be destroyed by a neighbor's animals.

How THEY WILL VOTE .-- The Albany Statesman, for the last five years the leading American paper in Central New York, says that more than 75,000 Americans in that state, who have never before voted a republican ticket, will vote for Abraham Lincoln in November next.

CAPT. FORBES A FOLLOWER OF GARIBAL-DI.—Captain Forbes, who created quite a sensation some months since by pretending to know so much more than he really did of John Brown and his plots, has turned up in Sicily, where he occupies a high military position under Garibaldi.

Mr. Codding, of Illinois, addresses the people to night. Let every Wide-Awake be this evening. Few men equal Mr. Codding | at the Court Room at 72 o'clock precisely, as a public speaker. Those who expect to with lamp and uniform for street parade to receive him.

WATER WITCH ENGINE Co. No. 2.—A meeting of the above company will be held at their hall on Saturday evening, Septem. ber 1st, at 8 o'clock. Every member is carnestly requested to be present.

The friends of the company who intend to accompany us on our proposed excursion will please attend.

C. P. KING, Foreman. A. R. Johnson, Clerk.

DENIES IT.—It having been asserted by the Douglasites that J. M. Alvord, editor of the Albion (N.Y.) Herald, had declared his intention to vote for Douglas, that gentle man sends a letter to the Buffalo Express, denying the aspersion upon his character. He will cordially support Lincoln and the republican ticket.

It has been definitely settled that John C. Breckinriage will make a speech at Lexington on the 5th of September. Daniel and is expected.

A new style of street cars have been in troduced into Pittsburg, Penn., which is to be propelled by compressed air, and can run with more than ordinary speed, with six hundred pounds of air.

Ladies' Equestrian Fair.—Floral Hall, situated in the center of the fair grounds, has been put in excellent order for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen visiting the fair on the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th of September. The interior has been thoroughly reno vated and two hundred and fifty chairs, with a large number of tables, are provided for family parties who desire refreshments. A large private appartment is appropriated especially for the use of ladies, with females in attendance. Chairs are also placed upon the balcony surrounding the cupola, giving parties a fine view of the entire grounds. As an additional inducement for patronizing "Floral Hall," the proprietors will distribute Fifty Presents, valued at Five Hundred Dollars to the patrons of this establishment. The Presents will be given out on Friday the 7th of September, at 4 c'clock, by a committee appointed for that purpose, who will distribute the same to the patrons upon such plan as they may deem most proper. Should a present fall to he lot of any one not in attendance at the time of the distribution, the committee will retain the same until called for. The articles to be presented are now on exhibition at the Jewelry Store of S. C. Spaulding, Esq., of this city, where they will remain until the day of pre-[au8idiw] J. F. KIMBALL & CO.
